From FRIDAY May 12 2006

Puppy Fudge is at Morton Clinic with mange and a broken leg.

One more rescue! How could we say no?

Melissa's report

We recently received a phone call from a gentleman asking us if we could come rescue a puppy. My original answer was the standard "No, we are more than full." The man then explained he had been feeding several adult dogs and a group of puppies; however, all but this one last puppy had been killed either by other dogs or coyotes. He said he was so tired of burying ripped apart puppies and asked if we could save this one from the same fate.

My husband, Bruce, just happened to be in the hospital trailer during the call, so he and Mary, our newest employee (who knew the area where this puppy was located) got in the van
